Search the NextGen Database

This is a unique searchable database of researchers from Canadian universities, colleges, research institutes, think-tanks and civil society organizations – all working on issues related to global and national sustainable development. The NextGen Database also maps areas of research to the 2030 Agenda and the SDGs. It identifies how researchers in Canada contribute to the implementation and understanding of the SDGs. Find researchers or practitioner-researchers to collaborate with!

Follow the instructions below to search the database.

Step 1: Visit the NextGen Database Website

To begin, visit the NextGen Database Website by following the link below.

<https://nextgendatabase.ca/>

The screenshot shows the homepage of the NextGen Database website. At the top left is the 'NextGen Database' logo. At the top right are 'Sign in' and 'Register' buttons. The main heading reads 'Find a global sustainable development researcher in Canada'. Below this is a paragraph describing the database. To the right is a circular graphic with 17 colored segments representing the SDGs. At the bottom is a search bar with the placeholder text 'Enter name, sector, organization, or country', a 'Show All SDGs' dropdown menu, and a green 'Search' button. A link for 'Advanced Search' is located below the search bar.

Step 2: Type in some key words

Type in the key words you are searching for in the main search field.

You may leave the main search field blank if you want a list of all available profiles.
